SOMERVILLE COLLEGE, OXFORD
HISTORIANS' DINNER

SATURDAY 19 MARCH 2016

You are invited to return again to recreate the (in)famous History Dinner at Somerville, as we did in 2013. All historians who came up since 2000 are invited, including joint schools.

The dinner will include the full works: Historical Fancy Dress parade; demon quiz; a historical game; musical entertainment (guess who) – and also whatever other suggestions you would like to offer.

From 6pm over drinks there will be time catch up with what everyone is doing: we'll put up some displays of information and photographs, and have brief presentations both from academics and workers-in-the-world, as well as an update on developments in College.

But there will also be plenty of time for chatting – or perhaps discussing Rhodes Must Fall? We're inviting any current students who are around to meet you, particularly in case they want to get advice on your profession.

You are each invited to send in a short account (100-200 words) of what you are up to, with photographs, all of which can be displayed on the night. If you can't make the dinner, news about your current activities for display would be most welcome.

If you would like to contribute to the entertainment by offering an item of comedy or music please email Benjamin Thompson (benjamin.thompson@some.ox.ac.uk).

Dress code: Full historical fancy dress (or black tie if you're out of ideas).

So that you can enjoy a relaxed evening and make a weekend of it, there will be overnight en-suite accommodation available in Somerville's new ROQ buildings.

The charge per head for reception and 3-course dinner with wine is £35.

The charge per ROQ room (at a discounted rate for alumni) is £65. There will also be some cheaper rooms available, with shared facilities. Booking accommodation must be done through the College website.

This invitation will reach you by email only; please share this with those Somerville historians you're in touch with. If you receive this invitation from a third party and not directly from the Development Office, please contact Liz Cooke (Elizabeth.cooke@some.ox.ac.uk) with your up-to-date email address so that you receive communications from us in the future.
