

Further Particulars

Development & Events Officer (1 year fixed term)

One of the great leaders of the 20th century, Margaret Thatcher overcame huge barriers to become Britain's first, and to date only, woman Prime Minister, the first scientist to serve as Prime Minister, and the longest serving British Prime Minister of the century. She transformed the relationship between government, economy and society in Britain and became an icon of liberty in eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. She was among the most prominent figures involved in the historic process that led to the fall of Communism and the immediate need to design a post-Communist world order. She remains a globally resonant figure to the present day.

It was Margaret Thatcher's time as a student at Somerville College at the University of Oxford which unlocked her extraordinary potential. It honed her intellectual abilities, developed her political skills and enabled her to build the connections that facilitated the first breakthrough in her career. It gave her a recognized badge of distinction as an Oxford alumna, which sent her into the world on a level footing with those from more privileged backgrounds.

It is our ambition to create a living legacy for Margaret Thatcher that grows in stature with each passing year because it enables some of the brightest minds in the world to come to Oxford as Margaret Thatcher Scholars.

Our goal is to support and nurture around 100 Thatcher Scholars at any one time at Somerville, and to provide permanent support for the excellent education they will receive here by endowing a small number of senior fellowships. They will also be supported by the Thatcher Development Programme, a new initiative which will be open to all Somervillians, providing training, internships, support for travel to conferences and for all kinds of career development; and developing networks that will open doors for them wherever they go.

In time, they will become a body of Scholars who will reach into the courtrooms, boardrooms, newsrooms, hospitals, NGOs, schools, universities and governments around the world, forging and moulding a better future for their generation and those that follow.

This is an unprecedented endeavour for an Oxford or Cambridge College. The Margaret Thatcher Scholarship Trust has been established as a separate charity with its own registration with the Charity Commission. In the first instance, it will raise the funds* required to ensure that this unrivalled scholarship scheme will fulfil its ambition of becoming a living and permanent legacy to Lady Thatcher, and then will continue to run and administer the programme.

To achieve this ambition, the Margaret Thatcher Scholarship Trust is recruiting a Development & Events Officer to work with the Principal, key volunteers, the Development Director and the Campaign Director to raise the funds required to reach our target. As this post is subject to funding, the appointment is being offered for a fixed term of one year. Re-appointment will be dependent on further funding being available and approval by the College's Governing Body.
